While we love all the fabric flower necklaces that have been so popular lately--whether mounted on bibs or hanging off ribbons--we have to admit they've become quite ubiquitous. That's why this metal flower necklace from sculptor and designer Sarah Cavender caught our eye. Hand-crafted from metal mesh screens, these flowers fulfill our floral passion but transform into works of art with their "industrial knitted" look, colored into both natural and fantastical hues. See? We're not done with loving flowers--we just wanted a fresh bloom!
